GP Shared Antenatal Care

an introduction

INTRODUCING SHARED ANTENATAL CARE

What is GP Shared Antenatal Care?

GP Shared Antenatal Care is sharing your pregnancy between a GP (your Doctor) and your nearest public hospital.

Am I suitable for GP Shared Antenatal Care?

If you have an uncomplicated pregnancy and no history of obstetric problems, GP Shared Antenatal Care could be the right option for you.

Your Doctor or the Hospital Antenatal Clinic can advise if you are suitable.

For enquiries about Shared Antenatal Care or help during your pregnancy, ask to be put through to the Hospital Antenatal Clinic.

ABOUT SHARED ANTENATAL CARE

What are the advantages of GP Shared Antenatal Care?

Choosing GP Shared Antenatal Care enables you to:

- Have most of your antenatal appointments with your Doctor at a time convenient to you, and
- Still have access to specialist care at the hospital.

How does GP Shared Antenatal Care work?

Your check-ups will be shared between your Doctor's surgery and the Hospital Antenatal Clinic.

How do I choose GP Shared Antenatal Care?

As soon as you know you are pregnant, let your Doctor know which antenatal care option you would prefer. If you choose GP Shared Antenatal Care, you still need to book in for the birth of your baby with your nearest hospital as soon as the pregnancy is confirmed (6-8 weeks after the last menstrual period.)

What is an Antenatal Care Record Card?

When you commence GP Shared Antenatal Care, your Doctor will give you a yellow Antenatal Care Record Card. It is important that you take this with you to all your visits to your doctor and the Hospital Antenatal Clinic as it contains important information about how your pregnancy is progressing.

Usual baby and mother checks

Your Doctor will be providing most of the routine baby checks and immunisations for your baby. GP Shared Antenatal Care can help establish a good relationship with your Doctor for you, and your baby's future medical needs.
